We proudly present the second edition of the Annual Report of the International Nuremberg Principles Academy. It reflects the activities and the achievements of the Nuremberg Academy throughout the year of 2018. It was another year of growth for the Nuremberg Academy with an increased number of events and activities at a peak level.

Important anniversaries such as the 70th anniversary of the judgment of the International Military Tribunal for the Far East in Tokyo and the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Rome Statute have been reflected in the Academy’s work and activities. Major international conferences – as far as we can see the largest of their kind, dedicated to these important dates worldwide – were held in Nuremberg in May and in October.

Events organized by the Nuremberg Academy took place not only in Nuremberg but also in The Hague. Thanks to an increased recognition of the Academy and its products and work, we have enjoyed a variety of invitations to international conferences, which enables the Nuremberg Academy to actually reach out to practitioners in the field of international criminal law in Europe and in Asia.

With the international conference dedicated to the 70th anniversary of the judgment in the Tokyo Trial the Nuremberg Academy organized the largest event worldwide related to this historic date. By conducting the Nuremberg Forum 2018, commemorating the 20th anniversary of the Rome Statute, the Nuremberg Academy offered a platform for experts, practitioners, and major stakeholders in the field of international criminal law.

Focusing on pivotal topics in the field of international criminal law, the Nuremberg Academy has again strengthened its profile and its recognition in the field. This would not have been possible without the ongoing engagement of the three founders of the Nuremberg Academy. The support of the Foundation Board and of the Advisory Council remains invaluable for the Nuremberg Academy and its work and we remain most grateful for the dedication and commitment of their members.

As in the previous years, we had the privilege and the pleasure of working together with recognized professional partners. Without their contributions, our success would not have been possible. We particularly thank the City of Nuremberg, the Free State of Bavaria and the Higher Regional Court of Nuremberg, the Friedrich-Alexander-Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg, the Wayamo Foundation, the Centre of International Law Research and Policy, and the Strathmore Institute for Advanced Studies in International Criminal Justice.

To be prepared in the best possible way to meet current and present challenges and tasks, the Nuremberg Academy has also strengthened its internal capacity and organization. A team retreat was held in spring and a study visit to The Hague took place, allowing all staff members to meet and exchange with key actors in the field of international criminal law and judicial cooperation like the International Criminal Court, Europol, Eurojust, and the International Court of Justice.

Despite so many efforts worldwide, we all had to witness in 2018 again an increase of armed conflicts around the world with millions of people fleeing, unspeakable atrocities committed, and huge suffering among the civilian population. This evidences that the Nuremberg Principles have not lost any of their importance, on the contrary, their relevance is continuously increasing. The International Nuremberg Principles Academy remains committed to the promotion of peace through justice, to giving dignity to the victims of the crimes, to the promotion and strengthening of the rule of law, and to the fight against impunity.

Principle VII
Complicity in the commission of a crime against peace, a war crime, or a crime against humanity asset forth in Principle VI is a crime under international law.
With Nuremberg being the birthplace of modern international criminal law, the International Nuremberg Principles Academy is uniquely placed to offer a platform for open dialogue and, where appropriate, critical exchange. The Nuremberg Principles, whose “custodian” the Nuremberg Academy is, were adopted unanimously at the first General Assembly of the United Nations. Today, they are an integral part of the charters, statutes, and governing laws of all international courts and tribunals. However, their implementation and interpretation differs and it is the Nuremberg Academy that offers the neutral platform for the necessary dialogue.

Bringing scholars, practitioners, and civil society together is a core task for the Nuremberg Academy and a centerpiece of its activities. In 2018, conferences and meetings span from major events like the expert conference on the 70th anniversary of the judgment of the International Military Tribunal for the Far East in Tokyo held in May and the Academy’s main annual event, the Nuremberg Forum 2018 held in October. Both conferences were certainly among the largest gatherings worldwide on these two topics. The Nuremberg Forum 2018 was dedicated to the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Rome Statute. Federal Foreign Minister of Germany, Heiko Maas, and the Chief Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court, Fatou Bensouda, delivered the keynote addresses. The conference in May assembled scholars and experts as well as practitioners from Asia, Australia, Europe, and America. Both events attracted hundreds of participants and attendees and received international media coverage.

The bi-annual Review Symposium on Atrocity Crimes Litigation assembled all chief prosecutors from the international courts and tribunals, defense representatives, and distinguished academics.

While these events take place in the open, the sometimes delicate field of international criminal justice requires also less publicly visible exchanges. Some of the activities of the Nuremberg Academy therefore are not as publicly visible however equally important. The Nuremberg Academy convenes retreats and behind-the-scenes discussions encouraging specialist exchange and addressing sensitive issues, which warrant a non-public discussion under Chatham House Rules. In 2018, the Nuremberg Academy organized a retreat for the senior staff and executive leadership of the Office of the Prosecutor of the ICC. The Nuremberg Academy also hosted an expert round table discussing the increasing impact of privately organized investigations of core international crimes, in particular in countries and regions where no international jurisdiction has been established yet.

The Nuremberg Academy explored new grounds in December 2018: In cooperation with the Centre for International Law Research and Policy, the Nuremberg Academy held a two-day international conference in the Peace Palace in The Hague, the first major event organized outside Nuremberg.

Moreover, the Nuremberg Academy has continued to participate and made well-received contributions to other high-profile events such as the Assembly of States Parties, the International Nuremberg Human Rights Award jury meeting activities, and various international academic and multidisciplinary conferences throughout the year.
Conference
“70 Years Later: The International Military Tribunal for the Far East”
The international and interdisciplinary conference – the largest event of its kind in Germany and Europe in 2018 – commemorated the 70th anniversary of the verdict of the Tokyo Trial. In order to reflect multidisciplinary perspectives on the Tokyo Trial and its legacies, the Nuremberg Academy invited a wide range of experts, academics, and judges at international criminal courts as speakers – covering in particular international criminal law and history, different countries, and different legal systems.

Professor Yuma Totani from the University of Hawaii delivered the keynote speech and Professor Christoph Safferling from Friedrich-Alexander Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg gave the closing remarks. The panelists from Asia and the western world discussed the trial’s background and context, the similarities and differences of the tribunals in Tokyo and Nuremberg, substantive law and procedural law, obstacles and lessons learned, as well as the lasting impact that the Tokyo trial and judgment have had on current international criminal law issues. Among the specific topics of debate figured for example the development of international research in this field, the importance of an interdisciplinary approach, and the reception of the Tokyo Trial inside and outside Japan. The conference also discussed the influence of the Tokyo Trial on various modern international criminal law doctrines and prominent international tribunals such as the International Criminal Court and the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia.

Conference
“Atrocity Crimes Litigation Bi-Annual Review Symposium”
In cooperation with the Northwestern Pritzker School of Law’s Center for International Human Rights, the Nuremberg Academy hosted the high-level event “Atrocity Crimes Litigation Bi-Annual Review Symposium” in Nuremberg. The in-depth discussions, moderated by Ambassador David Scheffer who also initiated the Review Symposium, examined recent litigation and legal developments at the various courts and tribunals that address atrocity crimes (genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity, and the crime of aggression). The symposium also covered the progress in terms of practice and jurisprudence since 2016, including novel issues such as the creation of a quasi-investigative mechanism for Syria by the UN General Assembly.
II Polyphonic Day of International Justice in The Hague

The Iberoamerican Institute of The Hague for Peace, Human Rights and International Justice joined forces with the Nuremberg Academy and other partners to organize this conference, which represented one of the activities of the VIII Iberoamerican Week of International Justice held at The Hague University of Applied Sciences. Academics and practitioners provided perspectives of international criminal law from around the world. Nuremberg Academy Director Klaus Rackwitz chaired the panel on “The Impact of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in its 70th Anniversary: Achievements and Failures”, in which Senior Officer Eduardo Toledo participated as a speaker.

Book Presentation and Discussion – “From Streicher to Šešelj: The Origins and Outlook of Atrocity Speech Law”

The Nuremberg Academy hosted a presentation of the new book “Atrocity Speech Law: Foundation, Fragmentation, Fruition” by Professor Gregory Gordon of the Chinese University of Hong Kong, followed by a discussion. Professor Gordon analyzed the different dimensions of the jurisprudence related to his definition of “Atrocity Speech Law”. The focus was on the legacy of the Nuremberg trials and the relevance of the cases of Julius Streicher and Otto Dietrich in the development of Atrocity speech related jurisprudence. The presentation also focused on the media cases of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda and the recently concluded Šešelj case at the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia/International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals.

3rd Annual Conference at Strathmore University

“Appraising Capacity of Institutional Responses to Commission of Sexual and Gender-Based Violence in Cyberspace” was the topic of the 2018 conference, which the Nuremberg Academy co-organized in partnership with the Strathmore Institute for Advanced Studies in International Criminal Justice, under the auspices of Strathmore Law School. It brought together experts from international organizations, governments, law enforcement agencies, civil society organizations, academia, and the media. They discussed the identification of systemic impediments, which obstruct investigations, prosecutions, and digital forensics interrogations, as well as judicial capacity in trials of sexual and gender-based violence in cyberspace.
Nuremberg Forum 2018

The Nuremberg Forum, entitled “20th Anniversary of the Rome Statute: Law, Justice and Politics”, commemorated the 20 years of existence of the Rome Statute. German Federal Minister for Foreign Affairs, Heiko Maas, and the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court (ICC), Fatou Bensouda, delivered the keynote addresses to the 2018 edition of the major annual international conference of the Nuremberg Academy. Leading practitioners and academics in the fields of international criminal law and international human rights composed the panels, including policymakers whose work and efforts led to the creation of the ICC. The conference covered key topical issues in light of the anniversary: the making of the Rome Statute, criteria relating to case selection and length of proceedings, role of victims participation and reparation in the proceedings of the court, the engagement of states with the court, and the potential future trajectory of the ICC in the next 20 years. The panelists identified a number of needs, such as strengthening of the cooperation between the ICC and regional and national mechanisms; the development of a constructive approach to complementarity; and the enhancement of the role of the Assembly of State Parties for better engagement of the states with the court.

The last living prosecutor of the Nuremberg Trials, Benjamin “Ben” Ferencz, spoke to the participants of the Nuremberg Forum with a specially recorded video message. In his very engaging appeal, he pointed out the importance of the ICC and rule of law systems by urging the audience to never give up working for the principle of “law not war”.

The Free State of Bavaria kindly invited the participants of the Nuremberg Forum to a State Reception at the Nuremberg Castle. The Bavarian State Minister of Justice Professor Winfried Bausback opened the evening with a keynote speech.

The President of the Advisory Council of the Nuremberg Academy, former UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Dr. Navi Pillay, gave the opening remarks.

Expert meeting on
“Private Investigations in International Criminal Justice”
The phenomenon of privately organized investigations in international criminal proceedings, especially in Syria and Iraq, was at the center of an exchange of views by practitioners of international criminal law and academics during an expert meeting convened by the Nuremberg Academy. They identified the need for clear guidelines as to how such collections of evidence are to be carried out in order to ensure the necessary transparency and legal certainty. Under the leadership of the Nuremberg Academy, the experts will thus draft the “Nuremberg Guidelines for Private Investigations” to support practitioners in this field. The project will continue with a second expert meeting in Nuremberg in 2019.

The timely topic of integrity in international justice attracted a large international audience. Building capacity to investigate and prosecute core international crimes has again been one of the main activities of the International Nuremberg Principles Academy in the last year. The few international courts and tribunals will never be able to investigate and prosecute all cases of core international crimes – everyone who is engaged in the fight against impunity knows this fact, hence strengthening individual and institutional capacities for the prosecution of international crimes at the domestic level is key.

Likewise, capacity is required for a proper representation of the interests of the victims of these crimes. And last but not least, the affected communities and relevant actors require capacity to adequately report on the judicial activities combatting the crimes and explaining to the population the course of justice, in particular when the proceedings are held far away from the territory where the crimes had been committed.

The Nuremberg Academy is taking a lead role in offering specifically designed and tailored capacity building and training for legal and non-legal practitioners. In line with its mandate, the aspiration is to build and strengthen capacities at the individual, institutional, and societal level, with a focus on national and international institutions advancing the fight against impunity for core international crimes.

The Nuremberg Academy designs and implements its training programs not only in Nuremberg but also worldwide. Emphasis is put on addressing young talent and the next generation of legal practitioners as demonstrated by its two flagship activities, which were held in Nuremberg again in the summer of 2018: the Nuremberg Moot Court and the Nuremberg Summer Academy for Young Professionals. Together with the International Criminal Law Research Unit of the Friedrich-Alexander-Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg, the Nuremberg Academy hosted more than 50 teams competing in the Nuremberg Moot Court 2018, a record number of participants. The Nuremberg Summer Academy for Young Professionals is an annual two-week intensive course that allows young professionals from conflict or post-conflict related countries to acquire or deepen their knowledge of substantive and procedural aspects of international criminal law. The participants, including young lawyers, prosecutors, judges, and academics, are carefully selected from a pool of several hundred applicants with a clear focus on young lawyers from crisis or conflict countries and regions.

In addition to these activities and in cooperation with partners, capacity building seminars were organized, in English and in French, inter alia, for military and civil prosecutors in Nigeria, for judges and prosecutors from Western African countries and for legal and law enforcement practitioners from East African countries. The Nuremberg Academy also was engaged in giving lectures at universities in Europe and Asia, received groups of students and young academics, and organized a specialized media training for journalists from Kosovo to prepare them for their work regarding the newly established Specialist Chambers for Kosovo in The Hague.

Workshops

“Strengthening Justice and Accountability in Nigeria”

The ongoing series of capacity building workshops for Nigerian military and civil prosecutors runs since 2016. The Nuremberg Academy offers these seminars in cooperation with the Wayamo Foundation. The overall aim of the sessions is to equip Nigerian prosecutors and investigators with the necessary expertise and skills to address serious and complex international, transnational and terrorism-related crimes under Nigerian criminal law. This also includes crimes that may potentially fall under the jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court. In 2018, the two partners conducted a workshop in Abuja in May and two workshops in Lagos in November.

The fifth and sixth sessions of the series in Abuja and Lagos were purpose-designed to impart joint capacity building for senior military and civil investigators and prosecutors. The three-day programs provided academic and theoretical knowledge on fundamental elements of international criminal law (ICL), international humanitarian law (IHL), preliminary examinations of the International Criminal Court, and investigating and prosecuting sexual violence. They also focused on practical aspects and combined explanations with group exercises.

The second workshop in Lagos, entitled “Train-the-Trainer program”, enabled four professors of the Nigerian Institute for Advanced Legal Studies and one from the National Judicial Institute to take part in the first two days of the capacity building workshop, which covered the theoretical aspects of ICL and IHL. The following separate sessions addressed their particular needs as trainers, empowering them to plan future training programs.
The Nuremberg Moot Court is organized annually together with the Friedrich-Alexander-Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg. It gives students the unique opportunity to argue and dissect substantive and procedural issues related to international criminal law in the historic Courtroom 600. Students from all over the world come to Nuremberg to plead a fictitious case in international criminal law in a realistic setting. The judging panel consists of current and former judges, experts, and practitioners in the field of international criminal law, with the final round chaired by Judge Bertram Schmitt of the International Criminal Court.

Since 2015, the interest in the Nuremberg Moot Court has grown steadily. 119 university teams applied for the Nuremberg Moot Court 2018, ultimately 56 teams were selected. The student team from Maastricht University, the Netherlands, won the Nuremberg Moot Court 2018. As already in 2017, the team from National University of Kyiv-Mohyla Academy, Ukraine, came second. Sponsoring was granted to three non-European teams and thanks to the sponsoring from the NH Collection Hotel Nuremberg City three European teams benefited from additional funding. Accommodation, catering and the cultural program were generously facilitated by the other sponsors, the law firm Salleck + Partner, the Kolping House Nuremberg, and the Museums of the City of Nuremberg.

The teams participating in the Nuremberg Moot Court 2018 represented the countries marked in blue.
Intensive Course for East African Prosecutors

A cooperation of the Nuremberg Academy with the Office of the Prosecutor of the United Nations International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals, the Belgian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and the Strathmore Institute for Advanced Studies in International Criminal Justice generated the co-organized five-day intensive course “Advanced Training on the Prosecution of International Crimes”. The course provided regional prosecutors from East Africa with an integrated capacity building. It addressed a broad range of investigative, evidentiary and practical issues as well as skills that commonly feature in international and complex criminal cases. The course primarily focused on imparting and developing specific advanced skills through lecture-based modules and practical exercises. In addition, the participants learned about the application of strategic approaches to investigations, trials and appeals in the context of an international criminal case. The participants came from Kenya, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania, and Uganda.

Nuremberg Summer Academy for Young Professionals 2018

Since four years, the Nuremberg Academy conducts annually the two-week course Nuremberg Summer Academy for Young Professionals. It brings together young professionals from different conflict and post-conflict countries offering them an opportunity to deepen their knowledge on international criminal law. For the 4th edition of the Nuremberg Summer Academy for Young Professionals in 2018, the Nuremberg Academy received 450 applications from all continents. The selected 24 participants came from 19 countries and represented wide and diverse professional backgrounds. The faculty comprising international experts and practitioners from international courts and renowned universities offered interactive sessions on theoretical and practical issues faced by modern international criminal law. The participants acquired practical knowledge on all aspects relating to the investigation, prosecution and adjudication of core international crimes. The Nuremberg Summer Academy also fostered exchange on lessons learned.
Capacity Building

Seminar on “Journalism and Trial Reporting”

The Nuremberg Academy and the Kosovo Specialist Chambers co-organized the seminar “Journalism and Trial Reporting” for journalists from Kosovo. Journalism and criminal trial reporting are significant aspects of national and international outreach by the Court. Good knowledge of procedural regulations, fundamentals of international criminal law, and respective parties to a trial, helps journalists to deliver accurate information to the public whilst maintaining impartiality.

The one-week seminar included three modules dealing with basic elements of international criminal law, journalism and international criminal tribunals, and reporting on international criminal tribunals. International scholars, experts and practitioners from the fields of journalism and international criminal law shared their experiences and their knowledge on journalism and trial reporting with the participants. The seminar was deliberately designed in an interactive format – providing many opportunities for the journalists to actively participate, make contributions and exchange views.
As already described in the Feasibility Study for the establishment of the International Nuremberg Principles Academy, one of its core tasks is to undertake multidisciplinary research, drawing on law, social science and history, as well as further disciplines, as relevant. The research shall concentrate on issues concerning the prosecution of violations of international criminal law, taking into account both the guidelines of international law and foundations of legal history as well as concrete political and socio-cultural framework conditions. The research focuses on addressing topical issues and solving relevant problems in order to help translate theoretical insights into better practice. The emphasis lies on applied and interdisciplinary research as a key consideration in line with the mandate and origins of the Nuremberg Academy to allow a more holistic view of the development of international criminal law and international, hybrid and national jurisdictions. Special attention is given to newly emerging phenomena and cutting-edge developments, like the rapid progression of social media and the distribution of information through the internet or private investigations of international crimes.

The activities of the Nuremberg Academy during 2018 in the field of research prioritized the completion or continuation of ongoing projects as well as the initiation of activities covering new elements. Research topics in 2018 have included the deterrent effect of international courts and tribunals, the relation between Islam and international criminal justice, hate speech, and complementarity. With an interdisciplinary research project on electronic media used as evidence in criminal trials, the Nuremberg Academy has launched its largest project so far. Through careful monitoring and detailed assessments of the state of play, the Nuremberg Academy aims to ensure no duplication with other research projects. Equally important for the choice of research topic is its practical relevance and the fact that it is under-researched.

As its own activities unfold and projects grow, the Nuremberg Academy is dedicated to disseminating and sharing its research as widely as possible. The Nuremberg Academy has decided to ensure open access and free availability of all its publications. This includes creating open-access online resources, databases and publications, which allow everyone everywhere to access the content. In light of sustainability, the Nuremberg Academy aims to ensure that materials are well documented and preserved, including training materials and databases for useful and accurate reference.
Deterrent effects of international criminal courts and tribunals remains a timely and much debated topic. In 2017, the Nuremberg Academy published the book „Two Steps Forward, One Step Back: The Deterrent Effect of International Criminal Tribunals“ as the first volume of its Nuremberg Academy Series. The project worked with country experts who reviewed relevant factors to ensure that deterrence is preventive of future crimes like the adoption of national legislation on core international crimes, and, in a wider sense, through social deterrence. The studies covered the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Cote d’Ivoire, Kenya, Kosovo, Mali, Rwanda, Serbia, Sierra Leone, Sudan, and Uganda.

In 2018, the Nuremberg Academy decided to undertake a follow up project that focuses on gaining a practical guide or toolkit that directly supports practitioners in the field and could be used as a tool for future capacity building purposes. It aims to reach an audience who could use this toolkit in practice and who is interested in studying and/or further undertaking research or looking at the (potential) deterrent effect in the context of criminal law and procedure. A first draft of the guidelines was prepared by the end of 2018; the project continues in 2019 with the validation of the draft guidelines and practical tests to verify their feasibility.

The ability of crisis and situation countries to investigate and prosecute core international crimes is a key element in the determination whether a case is admissible before the International Criminal Court or not. The project which started in 2016 aims to develop reliable assessment methodology regarding the ability to conduct domestic proceedings as well as an online repository where the findings per assessed country can be found for future perusal. During 2018, the planning for the finalization of the project together with the Nuremberg Academy’s project partner, the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies advanced further. The final steps for the project are planned for 2019.
Hate Speech

The use of hate speech, which might incite violence up to large-scale crimes against humanity remains a problem that urgently begs a solution, given the ease of disseminating information via the internet. After the finalization of the pilot project studies in 2017, further activities to advance the project took place in 2018. Two meetings were held to internally evaluate and decide next steps. Activities towards the end of the year covered the preparation of the next steps, which envisage, inter alia, a plan of action for a more effective legal response to hate speech possibly leading to the commission of international crimes.

Islam and International Criminal Justice

With the publication of the finally edited anthology on Islam and International Criminal Justice, the project, which started in 2016, was successfully completed. Given the volatile situation in a number of mainly Muslim countries, the issue of the relation between Islamic law and international criminal law remains a highly relevant topic. The final event concluding the project was held in the margins of the Assembly of States Parties to the Rome Statute in The Hague in December 2018. Leading scholars and practitioners discussed the project results and confirmed their high relevance for the emerging discourse on the matter.

E-Procedure: Evidence in Time of Increased Use of Technology and Digitalization

The Nuremberg Academy started this interdisciplinary research project in September 2018. With the continued advancement of information and communication technology, the increased usage and sophistication of digital evidence have become a topical issue, particularly with respect to criminal justice and human rights violations. New technologies are being developed to accurately document human rights abuses, such as eyewitness projects and different crisis mapping databases. This has inevitably had an impact on usage of digital evidence for trial purposes and judicial and quasi-judicial mechanisms on national, regional and international levels. The project aims to address digital evidence within the realm of the practical guidance and rules that can be used in day-to-day operations of judicial and quasi-judicial mechanisms. This includes but is not limited to the first international and permanent criminal court, the International Criminal Court.

A Concept Note has been drafted and shared with 15 international organizations and institutions in Europe and North America. The project continues in 2019.
The International Nuremberg Principles Academy continued its engagement in applied and interdisciplinary research, training, education and consulting for particular target groups in the field of international criminal law and related human rights. With its publications and online resources, the Nuremberg Academy contributes to the reciprocity of theory and practice. The results of projects and activities are available through high-quality publications and online tools.

Research results as well as the findings and conclusions arising from its conferences and workshops are regularly published and available on the Nuremberg Academy website. A strict open access policy ensures that all interested persons can use the resources as freely available e-versions. Book publications can also be ordered in hardcopies for which the Nuremberg Academy’s publisher only charges the production and handling costs.

The Nuremberg Academy Series has continued to develop in the past year. It was established in April 2017 by the Nuremberg Academy, in cooperation with the Centre for International Law Research and Policy (CILRAP), to produce high-quality open access publications on international law published by the Torkel Opsahl Academic EPublisher. The Series seeks to cover relevant and topical areas that are under-researched or require renewed attention. The Series includes work that is inter- or multidisciplinary and brings together academics and practitioners focused on practical and innovative applications of international criminal law.

In 2018, the Nuremberg Academy published the second volume in the Nuremberg Academy Series, an anthology entitled “Islam and International Criminal Law and Justice”.

In terms of forthcoming publications in the Nuremberg Academy Series, work on two edited volumes took place in 2018: First, an anthology on the Tokyo Tribunal including original contributions from speakers who participated in the international conference “70 Years Later: The International Military Tribunal for the Far East”; Second, an edited volume on the “The Past, Present and Future of the International Criminal Court”. For this publication, the Nuremberg Academy launched its first ever Call for Papers thematically linked to the Nuremberg Forum 2018 and the 20th anniversary of the Rome Statute in July 2018. The response was very positive and we received far more abstracts than we could possibly accommodate. Both edited volumes are planned for publication in 2019.

Next to publications, open access online tools are useful, comprehensive and timely sources of information. The Nuremberg Academy partnered with CILRAP to offer the new online service Lexsitus. This learning and working tool was developed by CILRAP and launched on 31 January 2018. The cost-free use of this online service facilitates the dissemination of international law, proper access to law and thereby access to justice. Lexsitus is freely accessible through the Academy’s website.
Islam and International Criminal Law and Justice

“Islam and International Criminal Law and Justice” is the title of the second volume published in the Nuremberg Academy Series. This anthology explores international criminal law and justice in Islamic legal, social, philosophical and political contexts. Leading Muslim jurists and scholars discuss how law and justice can operate across cultural and legal plurality. They emphasize parallels between civilizations and legal traditions, demonstrating how the Islamic “legal family” finds common ground with international criminal law. The book analyzes various topics such as the impact of Islamic legal traditions on state practice, the constituting elements of authority and legitimacy, and the universality or Western-centric orientation of international criminal law. This volume shows that scholarship across “legal families” is a two-way street that can enrich both traditions. The book is a rare resource for practitioners dealing with accountability for atrocity crimes, and academics interested in opening debates in legal scholarship across the Muslim and non-Muslim worlds. The book was launched at a side event in December 2018 during the 17th Assembly of the State Parties to the Rome Statute in The Hague. The high number of over 80 participants of the launch event and the subsequent round table discussion evidenced the relevance of the topic. The publication is freely available online.

Nuremberg Forum 2017 Conference Report

The Nuremburg Academy published the Nuremberg Forum 2017 conference report entitled “10 Years after the Nuremberg Declaration on Peace and Justice, the Fight against Impunity at a Crossroad”. More than 30 participants of the Nuremberg Forum 2017 representing a wide spectrum of professional backgrounds, including practitioners, policy makers, academics and government officials contributed to the report. The conference report captures the discussions related to the 2007 Nuremberg Declaration on Peace and Justice and synergies and tensions between peace and justice. It also includes critical reflections on the progress made by the international community in advancing peace, justice, security and development in conflict and post-conflict settings since the adoption of the Declaration and its inclusion into the UN General Assembly’s agenda 10 years ago. The report focuses, inter alia, on the promotion of access to justice and the proliferation of justice mechanisms in post-conflict settings, the increasingly prominent role of victims, and transitional justice measures. The report identifies specific needs such as increased dialogue, regional cooperation, and capacity building efforts, and thus encourages future forward-looking discussions on peace and justice. The conference report is freely available online.

Lexsitus Online Service

Lexsitus is an open access online service that assists the learning of, and work with, legal sources in international criminal law. The Nuremberg Academy and the Centre for International Law Research and Policy launched this new platform on 31 January 2018. Users benefit from audio-visual lectures, commentary, case law, preparatory works, and digests, at the level of every article of the Statute of the International Criminal Court. Lexsitus offers more than 230 subtitled lectures (with full-text searchable transcripts) by over 60 international experts, including Klaus Rackwitz, Director of the Nuremberg Academy.

Lexsitus has been academically co-directed by Professors Morten Bergsmo (Peking University Law School) and Mark Klamberg (Stockholm University), and the Lexsitus Project Consortium. The Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs has provided co-funding to this project.

Sexual Crimes in Conflict Database

The Sexual Crimes in Conflict Database developed by the Nuremberg Academy and fully accessible online allows users to conduct research specifically related to sexual and gender-based violence online. The unique feature of the database is the combination of available data, including relevant both the jurisprudence from international, hybrid, regional and national courts, and other transitional justice mechanisms as well as academic literature and other publications. After the launch in 2017, the activities during the year of 2018 focused on the maintenance of the database, including update of the content and the monitoring of ongoing cases and situations. As in all its activities, the Nuremberg Academy pays particular attention to avoiding duplication with other resources. The database remains an important online resource and will be updated in future years.
The International Nuremberg Principles Academy offers a wide range of events, research projects, trainings, and publications. The Nuremberg Academy’s external communications inform about the activities of the Academy and serve a variety of communication channels: from classic press relation, web presence and social media, printed information media to audiovisual formats, and include all materials concerning the public image of the Nuremberg Academy. As a relatively young institution, the Nuremberg Academy is undertaking efforts to increase visibility and recognition, especially among practitioners and scholars in the field of international criminal law, international humanitarian and human rights law as well as national political circles and the media. Throughout 2018, those efforts continued to increase by enhancing existing tools and exploring new ground.

The publication of the first Annual Report was an important step forward documenting the work of the Nuremberg Academy, giving detailed insight into its activities and organization. In line with the worldwide reach of the Nuremberg Academy, the report is available in English, German and French and is from now on a regular element of the Academy’s external communications. The website of the Nuremberg Academy remains the most detailed, dynamic and up-to-date source of information about its work and activities (www.nurembergacademy.org). Since 2018, in addition to the English content, all activity-related parts of the website on events and news, as well as the background content, are available in German. The separate website of the Nuremberg Moot Court was relaunched in 2018. It appears now with an enhanced and improved structure and fresh design, more closely tied to the corporate design of the Nuremberg Academy.

Reaching out to interested international and local publics throughout the entire year and informing about the Nuremberg Academy’s ongoing work remains crucial. With the quarterly electronic newsletter, the subscribers keep track of the Nuremberg Academy’s news and upcoming events. The Academy has intensified its activities on social media channels, i.e. on Twitter, YouTube and Facebook (Nuremberg Moot Court). The Nuremberg Academy’s YouTube channel offers videos that document its main conferences. As a result, the number of newsletter subscribers is increasing continuously, as is the number of followers on Twitter, which doubled throughout the year. In addition, the Nuremberg Academy began exploring the blogosphere and contributed a blog post on the IntLawGrrls blog on the 70th anniversary of the judgment of the Tokyo Tribunal reflecting on discussions resulting from its own conference held in May 2018.

Substantial media coverage took place regarding the two main conferences of the Nuremberg Academy in 2018. Film teams from Shanghai TV and NHK Japan came to Nuremberg to report on the international conference “70 Years Later: The International Military Tribunal for the Far East”. Regional, national and international media including the German national daily newspaper Süddeutsche Zeitung and Kurdistan 24 covered the Nuremberg Forum 2018. The law journal Criminal Law Forum also featured a review essay written by Dr. Alexander Heinze on the Nuremberg Forum 2018.
The Nuremberg Academy regularly receives media and interview requests. On the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the Rome Statute on 17 July, the Süddeutsche Zeitung published an opinion article by Director Klaus Rackwitz on the current state of and challenges for the International Criminal Court. He further gave a radio interview to the “Mitteldeutscher Rundfunk” (MDR) which was broadcasted on 18 July 2018.

Documentary

“Peace Through Justice – The Legacy of Thomas Buergenthal”

In recognition of the life and work of Judge Thomas Buergenthal, the Honorary President of the Advisory Council of the Nuremberg Academy, we have produced the documentary film “Peace Through Justice – The Legacy of Thomas Buergenthal”. This film depicts his life and his groundbreaking work in the field of international human rights law, his engagement in international justice as well as the Nuremberg Academy and Thomas Buergenthal’s engagement for it. The project started in 2016 and resulted in a 42 min. documentary that is available in English, German and French. The award-winning filmmakers Ilona Kalmbach and Sabine Jainski from competent filmproduktion accompanied Thomas Buergenthal and his family in Nuremberg, in Sachsenhausen, in his hometown Göttingen, and in Washington, D.C., where he taught for decades. The documentary has been realized with the kind support of the Zukunftsstiftung der Sparkasse Nürnberg.

The Nuremberg Academy has presented the film in a premiere screening in Courtroom 600 in October on occasion of the Nuremberg Forum 2018. A second screening took place during the 17th Assembly of States Parties to the Rome Statute in The Hague in December 2018. The Nuremberg Academy intends to show the film at further occasions, including thematically related film festivals and to make it then available for widespread education purposes and public screenings.
The Foundation Board of the Nuremberg Academy consists of the Adviser to the Federal Government on International Law and Head of the Legal Department of the Foreign Office, on behalf of the Federal Republic of Germany; one representative each appointed by the Free State of Bavaria and the City of Nuremberg; and the President and the two Vice-Presidents of the Advisory Council. The Foundation Board decides on the fundamental strategic matters with regard to the foundation and determines the foundation’s basic orientation. It must ensure that the foundation’s purpose is lastingly and sustainably fulfilled. § 12 of the Statute of the Nuremberg Academy details the duties of the Foundation Board. In 2018, the Foundation Board met three times, on 23 February, on 15 May, and on 17 October.

The Advisory Council is composed of at least nine and not more than 18 persons of international repute in the scholarship and practice of international law (especially international criminal law) or related scholarly fields according to § 14 of the Statute of the Nuremberg Academy. In addition, one representative of each founder shall attend the meetings and have a vote; this representative may also be a member of the Foundation Board. Currently, the Advisory Council consists of 13 members, including Prof. Thomas Buergenthal as Honorary President. The Advisory Council advises the Executive Board and Foundation Board on the foundation's professional focus and ensures the quality of the foundation’s scholarly work.

In 2018, the meetings of the Advisory Council took place on 16–17 May and 17–18 October. In their 9th meeting in October 2018 in Nuremberg, the members of the Advisory Council of the International Nuremberg Principles Academy agreed on a declaration on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Statute of the International Criminal Court. In this declaration, the members of the Advisory Council express their concern about the growing worldwide disrespect for international criminal law and international human rights, the violent attacks on the integrity of international criminal justice and its institutions, as well as widespread disregard for the rule of law and human rights. The declaration recalls the promise made by the international community in Nuremberg in 1945–46 and calls on all states to end impunity for international crimes by supporting the prosecution of these crimes by international and national courts.
Declaration on the 20th Anniversary of the Adoption of the ICC-Statute

We, the Advisory Council of the International Nuremberg Principles Academy, which was established to promote sustainable peace through justice and the rule of law:

ARE FIRMLY CONVINCED that international criminal law upholds respect for human rights, helps to prevent conflicts, and facilitates reconciliation after the fighting ends.

To achieve these aims and following the Nuremberg precedent, the international community has developed human rights norms, as set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenants, and has created mechanisms to end impunity for the most serious crimes known to humankind. These mechanisms, including the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda and on July 17, 1998 the creation of the first permanent international criminal court (the International Criminal Court), ensure accountability for the most serious violations of fundamental human rights, support global enforcement of international criminal law, and build national capacity to investigate and prosecute these violations.

ARE DEEPLY CONCERNED by the growing disrespect for international criminal law and international human rights law across the globe, and the unwillingness to fight impunity and uphold international human rights norms.

ARE DEEPLY CONCERNED by vitriolic attacks against the integrity of international criminal justice and its institutions and the widespread disregard for the rule of law and basic respect for human rights.

RECOGNIZE the promise made by the international community at Nuremberg in 1945/46 and call upon all states to end impunity for international crimes by supporting the prosecution of these crimes both through international and domestic courts.
Financial Overview

The three founders of the Nuremberg Academy are the Federal Republic of Germany, the Free State of Bavaria and the City of Nuremberg.

The contribution of the City of Nuremberg consists in providing office space including telephone and IT structure for the Academy. The Nuremberg Academy currently uses offices, which are located in a historic building at the northern part of the old town of Nuremberg.

The Academy will move into offices in the east wing of the Nuremberg Palace of Justice as provided by the Free State of Bavaria once the construction of a new office building for the Higher Regional Court of Nuremberg is finished.

The Federal German Government, represented by the Federal Foreign Office, provides the financial support for the Academy’s work. The annual budget plan has to be approved by the Foundation Board of the Nuremberg Academy and authorized by the Federal German Parliament.

In 2018, the overall budget spent amounted to 1,675,500 Euro divided according to the budget plan into four different clusters:
